A party of 20 young people from Hotel Barre were pleasantly entertained at the Richardson farm, so called, on Richardson road last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barber. The trip from the city to the maple orchard was made in automobiles and in spite of the March weather which prevailed while a part of the journey was in progress, the woods were reached without incident. An abundance of warm sugar, doughnuts and other essentials were provided and the visitors were given every opportunity to watch the process of converting quantities of sap into Vermont maple sugar.

After an enjoyable dinner hour, the 500 players repaired to the home of Mrs. John H. Johnson of South Main street, where 10 hands of their favorite indoor game were played. Through The Times the Barre Historical society makes an appeal to the housewives of Barre to use due care in their spring cleaning in order that articles which should be preserved may not be destroyed. Old pamphlets, newspapers, legal documents, letters, reports, surveys, maps and old prints are all valuable for such a collection as the society is maintaining at city hall. Any old-fashioned articles, such as cooking utensils, table furnishings, children's toys, mantle ornaments or similar things indicative of an early period will be gladly received by the society. If donations are contemplated, the donors may notify Miss Wheelock at 145 North Main street or Miss Tilden at 8 North street.

Odors of beer and whiskey, wine and grappe, blended into a subtle perfume that went the whole way with him who would sniff well but none too wisely, were wafted upward through the gratings on the west front of city hall this morning when officers fell to spilling the first fruits on a destruction warrant issued by Magistrate H. W. Scott. All that was inventoried in a seizure made by the officers on Granite street some time since was permitted to go the way of all contraband beverages. Barrels of Fenway ale, Ingham beer in bottles, Highland Spring ale, to say nothing of cases of Haymarket whiskey, headed straight for the river once they were released. The warrant also called for the destruction of beer faucets, pitchers, glasses and other articles of trade.

The farm sale was consummated through the office of J. J. Dasher.
